

About us

The OUHFT is a longstanding level one hospital comprising of 6 specialist nurses for Organ Donation. 3 CLODS, 1 TROD and 1 CLU. Our units include Neuro intensive care, Oxford Critical care, Cardio Thoracic critical Care, Paediatric Intensive care and Neonatal Unit, There is ED based at the John Radcliffe and Horton General Hospital. Our specialist nurses engage with the units daily to encourage timely referrals and build relationships.

OUHFT Activity

Hospital and community engagement

Regular teaching throughout the hospital, in addition to this, teachings have been delivered to medical staff, the Royal Air force, Oxford Brookes University and Sobel House Hospice. During organ donation week 2022 the team organised various events and promotional activities to engage with the public and wider community. The team were present at Oxford Brookes University fresher's week, to answer questions and give information about organ and tissue donation. For the first time historic Oxford buildings were lit up pink.

Organ Donation Committee (ODC)

In the past 18 months the organ donation committee has strengthened with active participation and the engagement internal and external members. The ODC chair is represented by the deputy chief medical officer of the trust. New additions to the committee include family and recipient representatives. The ODC is attended by representatives from unit and more recently link nurses have been included and attend.

Plans for 2023

The OUHFT organ donation team are committed to

- Continuing engagement with the units to reduce missed referrals
- Expanding the teaching programme and to seek opportunities with the wider community and schools
- Building on the success of organ donation week 2022
- Work more closely with faith leaders within the trust and invite to membership to ODC
- The installation of the organ donor memorial June 2023

